ADVANCED PROSTATE CANCER CONSENSUS CONFERENCE (APCCC)

30 April-2 May, 2026

and/or

INTERNATIONAL PROSTATE CANCER SYMPOSIUM (IPCS)

28-29 April, 2026

Lugano (Switzerland)

Bellinzona, April 2025

Dear Madam, Dear Sir,

We are pleased to announce that the seventh APCCC Meeting is taking place on April 30 – May 2nd, 2026 in Lugano, Switzerland.

The past six conferences were attended by top experts in prostate cancer from around the world, and there is already considerable interest for the upcoming conference in 2026. The next conference will take place again in Lugano complimented by a live stream.

The City of Lugano with its Convention Centre will again enable us to accommodate all interested experts and industry representatives who want to attend APCCC 2026. In 2026, we expect the attendance of 1000 medical professionals live in Lugano and another 500 virtual medical professionals involved in the care of patients with advanced prostate cancer from all over the world. APCCC 2024 attracted many key opinion leaders and other experts in this field, both as panel members and as participants. More than 100 of the world's leading experts will form the consensus panel in 2026. Many of them will also participate as chairs and/or speakers in the conference programme.

The success of this conference, as demonstrate and achieved in 2024, is also due to the great opportunity to take part in an inspiring event set in a stunning location in southern Switzerland, where meaningful exchanges happen in an intimate and welcoming atmosphere. Many new ideas and projects have been developed at the former APCCC conferences and this will be the case also for 2026. The unique opportunity to interact in a truly interdisciplinary and interprofessional manner also with radiologists, pathologists and nuclear medicine physicians but also statisticians and patients and other stakeholders has created a plethora of initiatives over the years.

For the third time, in 2026 we will feature again a separate symposium, with a focus on translational research and early trials in prostate cancer, now called, International Prostate Cancer Symposium – IPCS, in the days directly before APCCC on 28th and 29th of April, 2026.

28 - 29 April

INTERNATIONAL PROSTATE CANCER SYMPOSIUM (IPCS)

(separate programme and funding. For Diamond and Gold possibility to joint opportunity - see related chapter in this sponsor brochure)

30 April - 2 May

ADVANCED PROSTATE CANCER CONSENSUS CONFERENCE (APCCC)

Importantly, APCCC has led to several "satellite" meetings worldwide (e.g. South America, Asia, Australia, North America, Middle East and Europe) where the findings of APCCC are discussed and put into context on a regional level.

This meeting is not possible without your generous support. For the edition of APCCC 2026, you can either sponsor APCCC alone or together with the IPCS. We can give you the opportunity to participate in one or both events and to present your organization to an influential audience in this field, not only in an historical environment, but also in elite settings.

Your financial support will demonstrate to the attendees your commitment to support cancer research and treatment in the field of prostate cancer. Please note, this is an international conference and if you are not responsible for funding this kind of conference, we kindly request you to forward this invitation to the responsible person in your company.

We are looking forward to hearing from you soon and please do not hesitate to contact us should you have any further questions.

Yours sincerely,

On behalf of the Scientific Committee

Silke Gillessen, MD

Aurelius Omlin, MD

INTRODUCING

APCCCC and IPCS

In advanced prostate cancer, rapid and successful drug development has resulted in multiple treatment options that require careful decision-making for individual patients. Clinicians face the increasingly difficult task of choosing from multiple potentially effective treatments that also are costly and potentially toxic. Further developments in novel next-generation imaging methods, biomarkers, molecular characterization, and genetic assays have led to many open questions and areas for which there is sparse or low-level evidence to support clinical decision-making.

The Advanced Prostate Cancer Consensus Conference (APCCCC) was initiated to provide a forum to discuss and debate current questions on the clinical management of men with advanced prostate cancer, with a special focus on these unclear situations. Two days of the conference are dedicated to high-level presentations, discussions, and debates to summarize and conceptualize the available literature and evidence.

More than 100 of the world's leading experts forms the consensus panel. They will also participate as moderators and/or speakers in the conference programme. Following the conference, a manuscript with these expert recommendations is published

The International Prostate Cancer Symposium (IPCS) is a new specialized event that takes place in the days leading up to the Advanced Prostate Cancer Consensus Conference (APCCCC). It serves as a focused meeting point where experts, researchers, clinical specialists, and industry representatives gather to delve deeper into specific topics related to next-generation treatment modalities poised to transform prostate cancer care and shape future consensus treatment guidelines.

Background

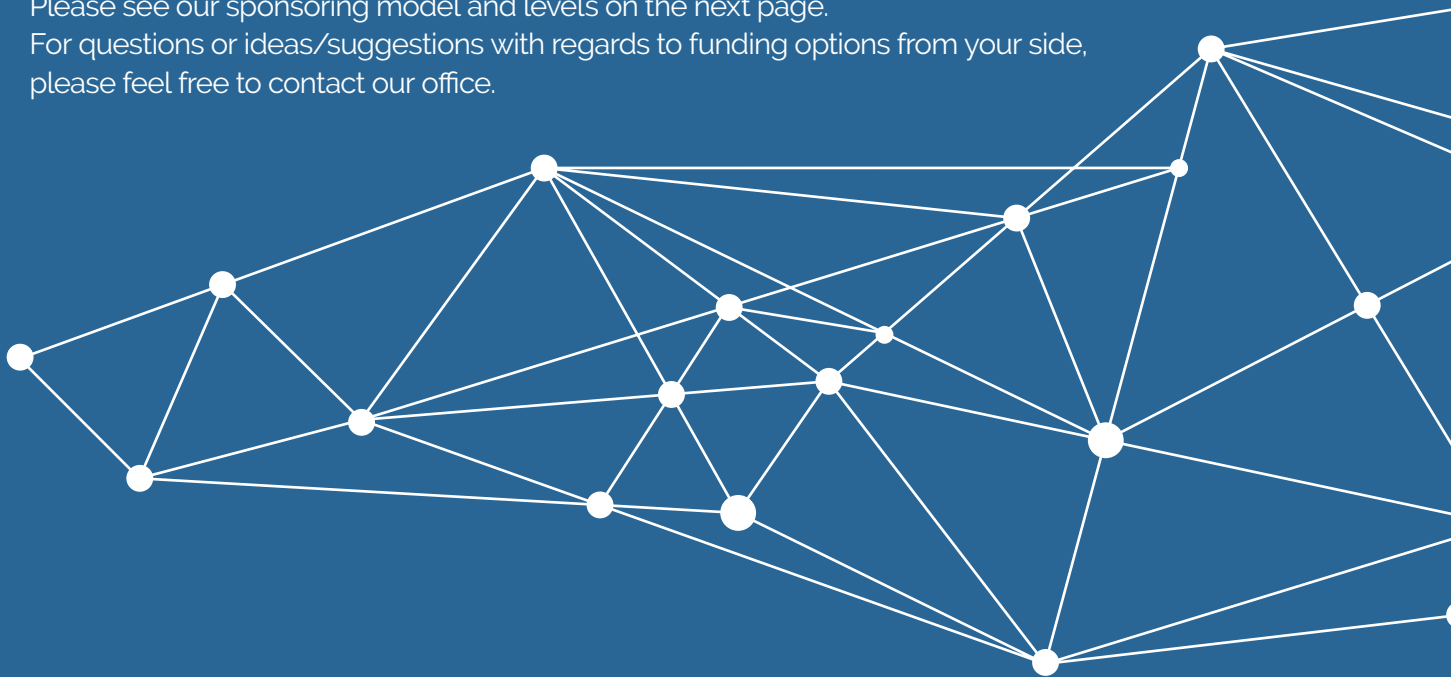

The conference is intended to be educational with keynote lectures by top international experts in the field, with a focus on discussion of topics relevant to daily practice. APCCC 2026 is a unique opportunity for medical professionals working in the field of advanced prostate cancer, and other participants to hear about the current state of the art and to interact with international prostate cancer experts to learn from their experiences and what they do in clinical daily practice.

Importantly, APCCC 2026 will be a hybrid event with a live format as well as a live-stream. Registered participants will have access to the video recordings of all the official APCCC sessions after the conference.

The pharmaceutical industry is an important partner and sponsor for this event and we are grateful for the support to hold this unique and important meeting. We would very much appreciate the participation of Clinical/Scientific Leaders of companies involved in drug development in advanced prostate cancer. Their input would be extremely valuable during the conference.

APCCC has always applied strict rules with regards to funding in order to remain independent. There will be no large industry exhibition as often present at oncology conferences. However, for the edition of APCCC 2026, in conjunction with the IPCS, an attractive sponsoring model has been developed to offer you the opportunity to participate in one or both events and to present your organization to an influential audience in this field, not only in a historic environment but also in elite settings.

Please see our sponsoring model and levels on the next page.
For questions or ideas/suggestions with regards to funding options from your side, please feel free to contact our office.

Sponsor levels

The focus of the APCCC conference is the furthering of knowledge and exchange of best practice to develop the daily clinical practice in the field of Advanced Prostate Cancer.

We offer three main levels of financial commitment. The value provided for each commitment is listed on the next page.

We appreciate your understanding that due to the tight programme and the consensus discussion we will not offer a traditional sponsorship model with a large exhibition. However, for the 2026 edition, we are offering you the opportunity to participate throughout the entire duration of both events—APCCC and IPCS with a Toptable presence in a historical and elite setting (Diamond and Gold joint Level only).

As usual, we invite you to join our discussions and provide us with your valuable input by attending our scientific sessions. To facilitate the exchange, meeting spaces are included in the sponsorship packages (Diamond, Gold, Silver).

Should you wish to support us with a financial commitment outside of the defined packages, please do not hesitate to contact us at industry@apccc.org

All Sponsors regardless of level are acknowledged with their logo on the website, printed final programme, break slide, and on the digital platform.
